

.DO NOT TOUCH.

When archaeological remains are moved, some of the information may be lost, deteriorate and/or disappear.

.DO NOT DIVE.

Be careful when using your diving equipment, you could hit and/or damage sensitive elements of the site.

.PHOTOGRAPHING.

It is a good practice both to document and to take a great souvenir, always with caution.

.DO NOT ALTER.

Respect the complementary protection measures indicated by the Authorities. Safeguard the site from erosion, intrusion and looting.

.REQUEST AUTHORISATION.

Do not dive without authorisation. You may endanger the archaeological remains and your own integrity.

.DO NOT STEAL.

The extraction of remains is only possible through an official and authorised archaeological excavation. Removing "souvenirs" destroys the historical context.

.DO NOT SELL.

Cultural Heritage should never be put to commercial use, it's a community asset.

.BE CAREFUL.

Respect all safety recommendations and exercise extreme caution in caves and wrecks.

.INFORM.

Report new discoveries to the Authorities and do not spread the news, it's essential to protect it.

.DOCUMENT.

This is the best way to confirm the location and state of the discovered sites. You can use notes, photos, drawings etc.

.REPORT LOOTING.

Contact the competent authorities if you find evidence that a site is in danger.

.PROTECT AND TRANSMIT.

Our heritage must be passed on to future generations, it is part of our cultural heritage.

.BE AN EXAMPLE TO FOLLOW.

Help to raise awareness of the importance of our underwater cultural heritage to others and to society as a whole.

MARGULLAR PROJECT.

The Cabildo de Lanzarote is developing the Margullar Project, an underwater archaeological research project. Co-financed with European ERDF funds, it aims to link the binomial Heritage and Tourism, preserving and conserving the marine cultural legacy for its subsequent valuation and use. In addition to admiring the seabed, people who dive in the archaeological sites get closer to our History, let's help to do it in a responsible way.
